

A SONG WRITTEN FOR BILL

My Last Kiss

Wedding Anniversary

1:29

4:22

I still smile when I think about our very first date,
I was speeding because, of course, I was already running late.
Pulled over and crying, I explained where I had to go,
My first online date with a retired police officer waiting for me, you know.

And Bill, you were still at the restaurant when I finally arrived,
We talked so much that everything around us slipped from our minds.
Three times the waitress came before we were ready to choose,
Then we stayed there talking until the restaurant had to close.

*Bill, marrying you was one of the best things I've ever done,
I'm grateful every day that somehow we found each other's love.
You protect me, you steady me, you care for me through it all,
And I know I can depend on you whenever I might fall.*

We found each other later, with full lives already lived,
Two established homes, grown children, grandkids and so much to give.
Blending two different worlds was never guaranteed to be easy,
But we chose to build a life together and make one home
from two families.

You're patient with my crazy, unconventional ways,
You step outside your comfort zone just to keep up with my pace.
Protective, kind and giving, dependable through every day,
Your steady love reminds me I am cared for in every way.

*Bill, marrying you was one of the best things I've ever done,
I'm grateful every day that somehow we found each other's love.
You protect me, you steady me, you care for me through it all,
And I know I can depend on you whenever I might fall.*

We weren't each other's first kiss, and that's perfectly
all right,
We had whole lives before our paths finally crossed that night.
What matters is the life we chose and every day still to come,
Because I'm so happy knowing our last kiss will be each other's one.

*Bill, marrying you was one of the best things I've ever done,
I'm grateful every day that somehow we found each other's love.
You protect me, you steady me, and I'll choose you all my life,
And I'm thankful that we found our way to be husband and wife.*

*We may not have shared our first kiss, but that was never what mattered most,
I'm grateful that the last one will be yours and mine to hold close.*

Scan to listen to your song

YOURMELODY

ORIGINAL EDITION • NO. 21660