

A SONG WRITTEN FOR CORTNEY

Right Where We Belong

6 year wedding anniversary

1:13

3:34

One last chance on Tinder turned into one incredible night,
You had left the Marines, earned your degree, and your future looked bright.

Everything between us felt easy, but life had plans of its own,
You were searching for work out of state while I had Ari here at home.

So we let each other go for a while, though neither wanted goodbye,
Then you found a job right here in town and gave us one more try.

You asked me out again, and soon you were moving in,
That second chance became the place where our real life could begin.

*Cortney, six years married and I'd choose this road again,
Through the good days, the hard days, every place that we have been.
You're the strength behind our family, the one who gets things done,
And somehow every road with you still feels like having fun.*

On Gull Lake, out there on the boat, I asked you for forever,
Then our first house gave us room to start building life together.
Stella came and made our family bigger than before,
Then another house became another place to dream a little more.

We chase warm tropical places when Michigan gets too cold,
Or spend our days out on the water making memories worth gold.

You plan every detail, you notice what the rest of us might miss,
And wherever we all travel, home is still a life like this.

*Cortney, six years married and I'd choose this road again,
Through the good days, the hard days, every place that we have been.
You're the strength behind our family, the one who gets things done,
And somehow every road with you still feels like having fun.*

Five hours from your family, you've still built a home right here,
We've faced the babies we have lost and saying goodbye to Mom this year.

But you stay patient, wise and caring when the world gets hard to face,
Always helping someone else while holding our whole family in place.

Cortney, six years married and I'd choose this road again,
From that last-chance date to everything our family has become since then.

You're beautiful and strong, and you make the hardest days feel won,
I'd be lost without you, and with you life's still just begun.

*You're the best thing that could ever have happened in my life,
And after every road we've traveled, I'm still proud to call you my wife.*
