

A SONG WRITTEN FOR ALLEN

Always and Forever

Birthday

1:22

4:02

Across the bar, your green eyes held mine
I crossed the room; your warmth became a sign
Sunday, May eleventh, two thousand three
We talked all night, so naturally
You said you'd be disappointed without my call
I called, and chose this life with you through all

*Allen, always and forever, I choose you
Your loving hands say more than words can do
Through twenty-three years, our love has grown
I choose you, my heart's own*

One Valentine's, by candlelight we swayed
Our living room held every step we made
"Always and Forever" filled the air
You asked me then; I said yes right there
Iraq kept me away almost a year
Your comic books made home feel very near
When I came back, you waited there in view
Red roses at the airport, held by you

*Allen, always and forever, I choose you
Your loving hands say more than words can do
Through twenty-three years, our love has grown
I choose you, my heart's own*

On your birthday, I celebrate
Our laughter lighting up the night
The years ahead, I won't hesitate
I'll choose you still with all my might

*Allen, always and forever, I choose you
Your loving hands say more than words can do
Through twenty-three years, our love has grown
I choose you, my heart's own*

*If time turned back, I'd cross that room once more
I'd call and choose the love I still adore*

Scan to listen to your song

YOURMELODY

ORIGINAL EDITION • NO. 21841