

A SONG WRITTEN FOR SAM

Where Our Forever Begins

Wedding

1:29

4:21

We grew up in the same small town,
Two young hearts with dreams of our own.
We walked through high school side by side,
Graduated, then followed different lives.

In our twenties, love brought us near,
But trust was missing, and we gave in to fear.
We let each other slip away,
Not knowing love would return someday.

*Sam, after all these years, it's still you,
The love we lost has found its way through.
At sixty-three, we're saying "I do,"
And I'm so thankful life led me back to you.*

We married others and raised our own,
Now our kids have families of their own.
With grandchildren and years gone by,
We found each other at the perfect time.

Now retired, with our hearts at peace,
We've found the trust we used to need.
Today we become Mr. and Mrs.,
Finishing our story with wedding kisses.

*Sam, after all these years, it's still you,
The love we lost has found its way through.
At sixty-three, we're saying "I do,"
And I'm so thankful life led me back to you.*

We can't go back and change the years,
Or take away the heartbreak and tears.
But every morning that we get to share,
Is one more answer to a lifetime of prayer.

*Sam, after all these years, it's still you,
The love we lost has finally made it through.
At sixty-three, our dream is coming true,
For all the years ahead, I'll keep choosing you.*

We started this love so long ago,
Now hand in hand, we'll see how far it goes.
