

A SONG WRITTEN FOR DREW

My Life Began with You!

Birthday

1:34

4:38

Back in two thousand eight, we met at work one day,
I was on housekeeping, you worked a floor away.
Fifteen women on my team, you'd talk to everyone
but me,
So I kept my distance too, not knowing what we'd be.

Then you brought my favorite sweets, and slowly broke the ice,
We shared our lives and little stories, everything felt right.

I asked why you'd ignored me, and your answer touched
my heart,
You said, "I used to admire you from afar."

*Oh Drew, my life began with you,
At thirty-six, you made my broken dreams come true.
You gave me love, a place where I feel safe,
My once-in-a-lifetime love, my home, my saving grace.*

Those early years were difficult, some wanted us apart,
But we stood together, holding on with all our hearts.
I spent five days away one April, missing you so much,
I booked our wedding when I came home, before we'd even talked.

I called and said, "I've done something naughty," you feared the worst that day,
But when I said, "I've booked our wedding," your joy took fear away.
In two thousand sixteen, we made our family one,
Five boys, five granddaughters, two grandsons, and so much love.

*Oh Drew, my life began with you,
At thirty-six, you made my broken dreams come true.
You gave me love, a place where I feel safe,
My once-in-a-lifetime love, my home, my saving grace.*

When illness took me from my work, you carried us through,
You cared for me, supported us, and cared for your father too.
Your heart of gold, your wit, your strength, your love
so true,
I know I'm far from perfect, but I'd give the world to you.

*Oh Drew, my life began with you,
You gave me a life I never thought I'd know.
Happy birthday, my forever, my heart, my safest place,
I'll love you through whatever comes, with every breath
I take.*

Drew, you didn't just change my life, you gave me one worth living,
And I'll spend forever loving you, grateful for all you've given.
