A SONG WRITTEN FOR ANGIE

Eternal Love's Journey

Birthday

1:29 4:23

August fourteenth, nineteen ninety-one
Five minutes late, by my own count that day
You'd say that isn't how it happened, true
That first date took my breath away
Your smile made every moment bright
Your country accent felt so right
At Harris Riverfront Park, I said it plain
I love you, and I'd say it all again

> Angie, I'll always stand by your side
> You're everything, my joy and pride
> No matter where the years may stray
> I know I'll love you come what may

At Sears, where we first met, I found the nerve
To ask you through the intercom that day
That little moment meant more than I deserved
Your yes made all my shadows fade away
July twentieth, nineteen ninety-two
Durbin Methodist Church, our perfect day
A few years ago, that bad illness brought fear
I feared that I was losing you from view
Through all my sicknesses, you stayed right here
After surgeries, you pulled me through

> Angie, I'll always stand by your side
> You're everything, my joy and pride
> No matter where the years may stray
> I know I'll love you come what may

On your birthday, I just want to say
You make me try a brand-new way
I see how country calls to you
And I'll keep coming back there too

> Angie, I'll always stand by your side
> You're everything, my joy and pride
> No matter where the years may stray
> I know I'll love you come what may

Your smile keeps shining in my view
My whole life leads me back to you
